Beirut blast: No CIA link found

A House Intelligence Committee investigation found no "direct or indirect" U.S. involvement in a March 8 terrorist bombing in Beirut that killed at least 80 people.

The committee's investigation was prompted by reports that the CIA had provided support to counterterrorist units in the Middle East, and that the March 8 bombing involved one of the units.

The bombing occurred outside the home of the leader of Hezbollah, a militant Shiite faction holding some of the hostages from Flight 847.
